

It's April.
It often rains in April.
But today is a nice day.
The sun is shining.
Hugo is going for a walk.
He likes walking on the grass.
Is the sun still shining?
No, the weather is changing..
Hugo sees raindrops falling from the sky.
Hugo hurries.
The rain is coming nearer.
Hugo is running fast.
Now he can feel the rain.
He doesn't like to be wet.
He runs as fast as he can.
Suddenly he arrives at a river.
He can't stop.
He falls into the water.
He is wet.
The rain doesn't matter now.

Look at the sentences:

It never rains. - It's going to rain.

Now do the same:

(Zeit- und Häufigkeitspartikel wie always, never, usually, seldom, rarely, still etc. weglassen und den Satz in die ing-Form setzen.)

- The sun always shines in Southern California.
- They never walk on the grass.
- Hugo always hurries.
- The weather seldom changes.
- Raindrops usually fall from the sky.
- He never falls in the water.
- We are still wet.